

HOOVER IS OUT FOR PRESIDENCY; MAKES STATEMENT

Gives His Consent To Post His Name In Ohio Primary

OTHER STATES TO DO SO

Campaign Will Now Be Conducted In The Open

By George E. Holmes
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—Herbert Hoover became a full-fledged, open and avowed candidate for the presidency today.

He gave his consent to the posting of his name in the Ohio primary, thereby paving the way for a siam-bang battle with Senator Frank B. Willis, Ohio's self-designated favorite son, and this is to be followed by entry into other State primaries, notably in New Jersey, Maryland, Michigan, Oregon, California and perhaps several others.

Henceforth the Hoover campaign, which has been prospected vigorously under the surface since last August, will be conducted in the open. The die is cast. Hoover is an avowed candidate, the most prominent yet to appear, and as such he becomes the legitimate target for all other candidates, potential and otherwise.

"My conviction that I should not strive for the nomination, and my obligations as Secretary of Commerce, preclude me from making any personal campaign," said the Cabinet candidate in a letter to Col. Thad H. Brown, consenting to the use of his name. "I must rely wholly upon my friends in Ohio to conduct it and to conduct it in a fair manner with steadfast regard for Republican success in the State and Nation. It is my special desire that expenditure of money shall be strictly limited and rigidly accounted for."

"If the greatest trust which can be given by our people should come to me, I should consider it my duty to carry forward the principles of the Republican party and the great objectives of President Coolidge—all of which have brought to our country such a high degree of happiness, progress and security."

Senator Willis, who a week ago publicly warned Hoover that if he "dared" come into Ohio "it will be no kid glove or powder puff affair," took the attitude today, "Well, I warned him."

"When the primary in Ohio is over," said Willis, "Mr. Hoover will know whether these self-appointed friends of his (in Ohio) who have dragged him into this contest have advised him correctly. However, Mr. Hoover is welcome. I am confident of the result."

The Hoover managers plan to go into every one of the 22 districts in Ohio and organize a slate of delegates to the Kansas City convention. They face a tough fight, for in most of the districts the Congressman and the State committeemen are on the Willis side. Willis controls the Republican organization in Ohio, through his power in patronage, and he intends to compel his supporters to stand up and be counted. A majority of the Congressional delegation and almost the entire state committee are on record as opposing Hoover's entry into the State.

The Hoover managers, on the other hand, take the position that these organization leaders do not represent the thought of the rank and file of Ohio voters. April 24 will tell the story.

The most optimistic of the Hoover managers do not expect to capture all of the Ohio delegation of 51. They would regard anywhere from 12 to 25 as a substantial victory. It is conceded that Hoover will get some of the delegates from the larger cities of the State. The Cincinnati organization, which is wet, is avowedly against Willis, but most of the practical politicians of Washington consider Willis almost invincible in the rural communities of the State.

State News

HARRISBURG, Feb. 13.—Twenty-six additional automobile drivers' licenses have been revoked during the past week, the Department of Highways announced today. Ten more also were added to the prohibitory list.

The license of William A. Klase, of Bethlehem, was revoked for intoxication and George W. Thomas, of Ellwood City, for transporting liquor.

Licenses of G. C. Rhoads and Eugene Henry, both of Jersey Shore, were revoked on the charge of being habitual violators.

James Sweeney, of Easton, lost his license on the ground of being physically incapacitated.

Hospital Card Party To Be Given Tonight

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Harriman Hospital will hold a card party tonight in the Elks' Home. A large number of valuable and useful prizes are to be awarded including a clothes hamper, two end-tables, boudoir lamp, vase, table lamp, half dozen goblets, serving tray, flowers, candy and various other articles.

Table assignments will be made at 8.30. "Five Hundred" and pinochle will be played.

ELECTRIC CO. PLANS TO MAKE EXTENSIONS

Expects Large Increase In Business In This Territory

HAS MADE A SURVEY

An increase in business in Philadelphia suburban territory, of which Bristol is a part, in 1928, is expected by the Philadelphia Suburban-Country Gas and Electric Company, according to H. H. Ganser, vice-president and general manager of that company.

"After a careful survey," Mr. Ganser said, "we believe that 1928 will show a steady increase in business in this section, which will naturally result in an increased demand for electricity and gas. To take care of this increased demand, our budget for 1928 includes more than $2,000,000 for plant extensions and improvements, of which $3,954,000 is for the electric department and $2,355,000 for the gas department. These contemplated expenditures include for the gas department miscellaneous improvements to works and distribution systems and extension of service to Newton Square and West Manayunk and in Narberth, additional compressing, pumping and purifying apparatus and additional transportation equipment to take care of the increasing demands for service."

"In the electric department, we contemplate improvements at the Barbados Island power plant, including a substation, and at the various substations throughout the territory. Numerous extensive power line extensions are planned to tie in the electric systems in the Philadelphia metropolitan area and to take care of new business."

"Electric consumption in the territory served by our company showed a large increase in 1927 amounting to more than 24 per cent. Increase in gas consumption was also substantial."

According to Mr. Ganser the estimated increase in electric sales for 1928 is more than 17 per cent, and in gas sales more than 10 per cent.

"It is interesting to note," he commented, "that of the 79,000,000,000 K. W. H. of electricity and 475,000,000,000 cubic feet of manufactured gas produced in the United States last year, a total of more than 227,753,000 K. W. H. and 4,744,000,000 cubic feet of gas was consumed in the territory supplied by the Philadelphia Suburban-Country Gas and Electric Company. Neither the manufactured gas industry nor the electric industry has reported a decrease in annual sales or annual gross revenue during the last twenty years. In twenty-five years sales of electricity have increased about 1,500 per cent and of manufactured gas 352 per cent, while the population of the country has increased only 50 per cent. Total sales per capita have increased about 150 per cent for electricity and 70 per cent for manufactured gas in 19 years, reflecting a growth in sales per customer as well as an increased number of customers."

"The tremendous growth in the use of electricity for power in the factory and on the farm is one of the marvels of our times, a circumstance brought about by the initiative of great power companies who have made possible the production of electricity in its present large scale and its transmission over great distances. In the home electricity is enjoying an ever-widening field of usefulness. The electric washer, vacuum cleaner, ironer, refrigerator, radio, and smaller appliances, together with efficient electric lighting, have brought comfort and thought of a generation ago."

"Development in the manufactured gas field has been nearly as great, especially in the use of gas for industrial processes where clean, convenient fuel is necessary. In spite of the enormous quantities of gas consumed in industry, gas is better known as a domestic fuel. Today, it is a rare occurrence to find a home in a town or city without a gas range and gas water heaters and heating stoves, as efficient labor savers, are rapidly finding their places as necessities in modern living conditions."

"With these increased uses of gas and electricity has come a better understanding by the public of the problems of the companies that furnish the service."

The Philadelphia Suburban-Country Gas and Electric Company's territory embraces about 1,400 square miles in Delaware, Chester, Montgomery and Bucks counties, with a population of approximately 600,000. Gas service is furnished in practically all of this territory and electric service in substantially all of it.

LINDBERGH ENROUTE TO ST. LOUIS FROM HAVANA

"Lone Eagle" Hops Off For Flight Home At 2.40 A. M.

WEATHER IS VERY GOOD

HAVANA, Feb. 13 (I.N.S.).—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, hopped off in the Spirit of St. Louis from Columbia Field here at 2.40 a. m. today on a non-stop flight to St. Louis, Mo.

Col. Lindbergh's route will take him from Havana to Key West and from there along the west coast of Florida, skirting the Gulf of Mexico along the Gulf states to a point south of St. Louis. At this point Col. Lindbergh will strike a line due north for his destination, which he expects to reach some time after dusk today.

Col. Lindbergh's departure came as a disappointing surprise to thousands of persons who were preparing to be at the field at 5.30 a. m. They were acting on the previous announcement that Col. Lindbergh would take off about 6 o'clock.

At 1.45 a. m. accompanied only by a few newspapermen and officials, Col. Lindbergh arrived at the field and tuned up the motor of the Spirit of St. Louis.

The noise of the motor attracted a few late automobile parties which were added to the group huddling Col. Lindbergh farewell.

With soldiers of the garrison giving ground aid, the Spirit of St. Louis roared away in perfect tune. Col. Lindbergh waved goodbye.

Weather conditions were perfect and a bright half moon gave partial visibility.

Flying into a brisk northeast breeze Col. Lindbergh passed high over old Morro Castle and headed directly for Key West.

KEY WEST, Fla., Feb. 13 (I.N.S.).—A plane believed to be that of Col. Lindbergh passed over Tortugas Light House, 12 miles southwest of here, about 4 a. m. today.

The passing of the plane was reported by the light keeper, who said it came out of the south and headed due west.

Col. Lindbergh spent most of Sunday at the flying field, making several short flights over the city with distinguished passengers including President Machado, of Cuba, and Madame Machado, Gen. Alberto Herrera, commander of the Cuban Army; Dr. Rafael Turralde, Secretary of War and Marine, and other high officials. The versatile airman chose a three-motored Fokker for the flight. He carried the plane 3,000 feet into the air then swept out over the city and suburbs. The flight lasted 20 minutes. President Machado said he enjoyed every minute of it and never had a moment's apprehension, knowing the uncanny skill of his pilot.

LEGION CADETS ARE MAKING PROGRESS

Organization Started Here By Bracken Post Last November

WANT NEW UNIFORMS

The American Legion Cadets, a boys' organization fostered by Robert W. Bracken Post, No. 382, of Bristol, under the leadership of Harry F. Burbank, an active member of Bracken Post, was organized Nov. 17th last. The boys meet in the post rooms of Bracken Post on Thursday evening of each week where they have drum and bugle practice and the freedom of the club rooms. They hold their own business meetings twice a month, have adopted their own rules and regulations and have strict discipline governing every phase of their organization. The boys have chosen for their motto: "Be Honest and Upright, and be a Busy Bristol Booster."

Many of the Cadets are also Boy Scouts and they are constantly reminded by Cadet Commander Burbank to attend all scout meetings and keep up with their scouting so that their membership in the American Legion Cadets does not in any way conflict with their Boy Scout work. In other words, as the Legion members put it, it is just another night of the week to keep the boys off the street.

The only regrets the members of the Bracken Post have is that they do not have larger quarters, equipped with a gymnasium to carry on this work in a more thorough and efficient manner for the boys of Bristol.

The Cadets are working hard to equip their drum and bugle corps with new uniforms. They have held different affairs which have netted them a neat sum of money and are at present going around from door to door collecting old newspapers which they hope to sell to enhance their treasury for new uniforms. Anyone having old newspapers which they wish to dispose of would be doing the cadets a favor by phoning 302-J.

The officers are: William Winslow, business manager; Raymond Ford, secretary; Virgil Watt, treasurer; Charles Brodie, sergeant bugler; Ellis Comfort, sergeant drummer.

TULLYTOWN SCOUTS END WEEK OF ACTIVITY

Troop Has Busy Week Of Entertainment And Instruction

AT CHURCH SERVICES BOYS ARE HONORED

Tullytown Troop No. 1, Boy Scouts of America, under leadership of Scoutmaster George Obermeier and Chairman of Troop Committee Lester Shoemaker, had a very nappy experience in a week of great pleasure and helpful entertainment and instruction in celebrating the eighteenth anniversary of the organization.

Monday night they received their second class badges and also 11 merit badges at Court of Honor held in Bristol Community House.

Tuesday night they were taken in a body by Lester Shoemaker to the Grand Theatre and enjoyed the presentation of "The Big Parade."

Wednesday evening they enjoyed a fine banquet at the Bon-Ton Restaurant, Tullytown.

Thursday night they visited Troop No. 5, Bristol, and spent an enjoyable evening playing games.

Friday night each patrol leader royally entertained the members of his patrol in his home.

Saturday afternoon they enjoyed a hike and "doggie" roast and a fine meeting in Tullytown Community House in the evening.

As a fitting climax the troop attended church services yesterday in the Enille M. E. Church at 11 a. m., where the services were conducted in an able manner by Mrs. Francis J. Morrow, the pastor's wife, who officiated in his absence on account of illness. A program was rendered in this church and greatly enjoyed by all present.

On the evening of the same day at 7.30 p. m. the troop attended church service in the Manning Memorial M. E. Church, Tullytown. The pastor was out for the first time and took charge of the services, which consisted of special selections by the combined orchestra and choir, a saxophone solo by Wallace Keeler, two special songs by Junior Choir (Mrs. Van Doren's S. S. Class), intermediate choir (Miss Rose Wright's S. S. Class), piano and violin duet by Ellen Leigh and Matthias Summers, vocal solo and violin accompaniment by Mrs. F. J. S. Morrow and Matthias Summers, special Scout song by Tullytown Troop No. 1.

A very beautiful part of the service was rendered by the following buglers from Bristol Troop No. 1: John Johnson, Fred Herman and Charles Brodie, who gave demonstration of all bugle calls used in scout work. A very deep impression was made on the audience when Scoutmaster Obermeier took charge of a candlelight service illustrating the twelve Boy Scout laws and the motto of the organization. The sermon was delivered by Rev. Francis J. S. Morrow, pastor of the church. He took for his subject "Lincoln Day Thoughts for Boy Scouts." The services were attended in both churches by large and very appreciative audiences.

HIT-RUN DRIVER STRIKES LAD ON HIGHWAY HERE

Eugene Spadaccino, 913 Cedar Street, Severely Injured By Automobile

NOW IN THE HOSPITAL

Boy Was Walking Along The Road Near Grand Theatre

Eugene Spadaccino, 913 Cedar street, is a patient at the Harriman Hospital today, as the result of a "hit and run" accident that occurred on the highway near the Grand Theatre last evening.

The boy, who was walking toward the center of the town with two companions, was unable to tell just how the accident occurred. Charles Macauley, 318 Otter street, hearing the screams of the injured lad, ran to assist him.

At the hospital it was learned that young Spadaccino has two deep lacerations of the scalp, several abrasions of the scalp and both legs, and a broken nose. An X-ray will be taken today in an effort to learn the full extent of the injuries. It is not thought that they are serious.

No information could be given by the boys as to the appearance of the car that hit the Cedar street youth, other than that it was being driven toward Trenton. Spadaccino was thrown a short distance by the impact.

"8 'n' 40" In Session At Perkasio Saturday

PERKASIE, Pa., Feb. 13.—A sketch, a package sale and a tasty lunch followed a business meeting of the "8 'n' 40" society held in Fraternity Temple here Saturday afternoon, which was marked by a splendid attendance.

The sketch "Dr. Cure-All" was presented by members of the Women's Auxiliary of the American Legion Post of Perkasio. In the package sale each individual attending placed a package on sale and purchased one in return, the proceeds being placed in the treasury.

Friendly Society Hears Of Work Being Done

HULMEVILLE, Feb. 13.—Miss Field, provincial secretary of the Girls' Friendly Society of the Province of Washington, told of the work of the Girls' Friendly Societies at large in the United States and abroad at a meeting held in the bungalow of Grace Episcopal Church, Friday evening.

Many local members of the organization turned out for the affair and thoroughly enjoyed the talk. Miss Field told of the missionary object of the society she represents—namely the Vorhees School in South Carolina. Suggestions as to work that might be carried on here were also given.

The officers of the Society in Hulmeville are: Mrs. John Raymond Crosby, president; Miss Margaret Perry, secretary; Mrs. Bessie Davis, treasurer.

Basketball League To End First Half Tonight

Tonight in Beaver Hall the closing games of the first half of the Bristol Basketball League will be played. The Y. M. A. will stack-up against the fast moving A. O. H. team. If the latter wins the contest a play-off will be necessary between the "Hils," Caseys and Y. M. A. to decide the championship of the first round.

The other contest tonight will bring the Celtics and Immaculata teams together. Each of these have won one game and to decide which is the better it requires a third game to decide the honors.

The A. O. H. five will line-up J. Brady, C. Dugan, Holden, M. Carry, N. Dugan, H. Brady, L. Brady and Kervick; Y. M. A.—Bailey, Townsend, Pegley, Bauer, Hardy, Magill, Arrison and Harper.

The first game will call at 8.15 sharp.

Chas. D. Benjamin Speaks At Hulmeville Church

HULMEVILLE, Feb. 13.—"Wanted—A Prophet" was the theme of a talk addressed to 69 men at the Methodist Church here yesterday afternoon at 2.30 by the Rev. Charles D. Benjamin, Ph. D., pastor of the Methodist Church at Somerton, Pa.

The soloist on this occasion was the Rev. Walter H. Canon; and selections given by Harry Bunting, of Bristol, were also much enjoyed. The Rev. Benjamin is well known in this section, having at one time served as pastor at the Hulmeville church.

Next Sunday afternoon the women are invited to participate in the patriotic service, when the speaker will be the Rev. Edwin Forest Hahn, of Camden, N. J. The vocal numbers will be given by Mr. and Mrs. Vance Wiggins.

THE MONROE DOCTRINE

There seems to be some difference of opinion as to the role of the United States in Central America. The debate wages the full length of the American continent.

Our Central American policy is an extension of our Caribbean policy. Both are corollaries of the Monroe Doctrine. The Central American policy is also a consequence, in part, of our ownership of the Panama Canal and of the concession we hold for a canal across Nicaragua. It is still further an outgrowth of the Central American treaties which seek to discourage revolutionary activities in the little republics there.

Toward the governments which the United States has recognized this side of the Panama Canal it feels a moral responsibility that does not attach to other nations. It has pledged its aid to the five Central American states in stabilizing their governments and giving their people a chance to enjoy security and prosperity. This is in addition to its duty to protect the lives and property of Americans in those countries and the lives and property of European nationals who, because of the implications of the Monroe Doctrine, have come to look to this country for protection.

Chronic wrong-doing, or an impotence which results in a general loosening of the ties of civilized society, may in America, as elsewhere, ultimately require intervention by some civilized nation, and in the Western Hemisphere the adherence of the United States to the Monroe Doctrine may force the United States, however reluctantly, in flagrant cases of such wrong-doing or impotence, to the exercise of an international police power.

This is the doctrine applied by President Roosevelt in Panama in 1904, by President Wilson in Hayti and the Dominican Republic and by President Coolidge in Nicaragua.

BOOSTERS WANTED

A town has no place for the knocker; a knocker is hardly a man without a country, but his country, his town, or his community has little use for him.

There are all kinds of knockers—as many as there are kinds of people. The thriving city is filled with boosters—boosters who so outnumber the knockers that their knocking does not count for much.

We like the boosters. Sometimes they are super-enthusiastic, or, rather, over-enthusiastic is the better word. But they are always enthusiastic for their home town or the cause in which they are interested, and they are never to be found hanging around somewhere knocking this and knocking that. No, a booster is not built that way.

We must have these boosters; they are just as necessary to the successful enterprise as daylight is to the earth.

Knockers are found everywhere just the same as the boosters, but let us all be thankful for it, the boosters are always far away in the lead; usually, the knockers can be found in the rear, where it is safer for them, perhaps. They flock together, but even then they fail to make a crowd, as a rule.

But the greatest booster is he who converts the knocker into a booster—"makes him see the light"—so that both play the game as team-mates ever after.

A town has no place for the knocker—it matters not whether he knocks the town, its enterprises or its citizens.

Echoes of the Past

By Old Timer

One hundred years ago a communication of interest to Bristol residents at that time was addressed to Poulson's Advertiser. It appeared in the issue dated February 7, 1828.

So extremely bad is the road between the city and Bristol that poles are put across the turnpike. As the Delaware is completely clear of ice I would ask why the steamboats are not put in operation between Philadelphia and New York. Certainly one line at least would meet with sufficient encouragement, as there are many persons in both cities waiting for an improvement in the roads, or for the boats to commence running, in order to embrace safe conveyance.

Representatives of a large number of citizens and taxpayers of Doylestown, according to "The Intelligencer" under date of Wednesday, January 23, 1878, attended a meeting of Doylestown Borough Council for the purpose of convincing council of the need of an organized fire department for the borough. The representatives of the borough pointed out that the present fire fighting apparatus was fairly adequate, but that the trouble lay in not being able to get men to respond to the fires with the apparatus. They felt a company should be organized and that the men should respond to the fires. The matter was favorably considered by council and one representative of the citizens were appointed to prepare a plan of organization. The councilmen's committee consisted of the Messrs. Harvey, James and Hamilton, while the citizen's committee included Davis, Darlington and Barber.

Tullytown grammar school was the scene of an oratorical and spelling contest. Winners in the oratorical contest included Isaiah Woolston, Edward Roche and Ada Vansant. The winners in the spelling contest were Edwood Swangler, Ada Vansant, Edward Roche, Sadie Richardson, Lizzie Vansant and Laura Chambers. The judges were Benjamin F. Lovett, Charles Mannington and Anna S. Hawk.

An effort was on foot fifty years ago to divide the borough of Bristol into wards. The large and increasing population of the town was the reason his step became necessary. An application was made to the Court for the authority to hold an election to decide the matter. At a meeting of Bristol Borough Council, Charles Saxton was appointed a policeman at a salary of $10 a week.

While assisting in raising a barn which his father was building on the farm of James G. Hibbs near Langhorne station, Middletown township, C. Y. Stradling, Jr., Oxford Valley, fell a distance of 20 feet and fractured several ribs. His injuries at first were thought to be serious.

In an issue of the Newtown Enterprise dated February 11, 1893, the following items appeared: Edward V. Conly, of Yardley, was to give up the Yardley farm mill and enter the lumber business.

A reception in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Slack was given by the groom's father, Aaron Slack, at the Continental Hotel, Yardley, on their return from the wedding journey in Washington, D. C.

John H. Vansant, of Edgington, employed as a brakeman on the Pennsylvania Railroad, fell between the cars of his train while passing Bloomsdale Seed Farm and was killed.

Hulmeville

This evening the February business meeting of the Epworth League of the Methodist Church will be held at the home of Mrs. William K. Harrison, Walnut street.

"BEWARE OF MARRIED MEN," starring Irene Rich, is a Warner Bros. picture.

SYNOPSIS

Myra Martin, secretary to Leonard Gilbert, a divorce lawyer to whom she is engaged, discovers that her sister, Helene, is infatuated with Huntley Sheldon, a wealthy man. Huntley, whose wife, Nita, is divorcing him, Myra disguises herself and goes to Sheldon's hunting lodge to force him to give up his sister. She is caught there by Nita, who is seeking a correspondent, but escapes unrecognized, save by Sheldon. Then she finds that Helene has eloped with Ralph Naylor. Helene, concluding that Myra is interested in Sheldon, determines to keep her sister from him and arranges to meet Sheldon. Nita's detective "taps" the phone wires.

CHAPTER XII—Continued

He was highly elated at his success, for he hadn't had very much to speak of since he had been in Mrs. Sheldon's employ. But now, he felt, he had justified himself and had earned his salary. So he went off in great spirits to report his findings and arrange with Mrs. Sheldon the plans for the afternoon.

CHAPTER XIV

Gilbert had returned to his office from an early lunch. His face was glowing with suppressed excitement as he called Myra into the inner sanctum.

"I have a surprise for you, dear," he announced, his blue eyes gleaming with happiness.

"What?" Myra gulped. Somehow, these last few days, she had had so many of them that she was not able to imagine what was going to happen next. For a second she thought Leonard might have found out something concerning Sheldon, but he was smiling and so obviously happy that it couldn't be that.

It's perfect—

So Myra smiled, too, and waited eagerly, while he drew a little box from his pocket, unwrapped it, and opened it.

"O, Leonard, O, my dear! How perfectly gorgeous!" There, in front of her eyes sparkled a great Marquise diamond. "It's simply too beautiful for words!"

"Now, let's see if it fits." Gilbert took the ring from its velvet nest and slipped it on the third finger of Myra's left hand.

"It's perfect!" Myra held her hand up so that the light caught the stone and sent a thousand piercing needles of prismatic colors out from it. "O, Leonard, I'm so happy—so very, very happy."

"Are you, dear? Well, then, so am I." He kissed Myra gently, and the two stood clasped in each other's arms. "I've been waiting for them to get the proper setting for the stone," he explained. "I wanted it to be just right, and something that you would like. And I think now is a perfect time to give it to you. Now that Helene's married you'll feel much more free, and we can begin to make our own arrangements."

"O, yes, Leonard," Myra sighed happily. All her troubles seemed fast disappearing. Helene married; Sheldon well out of the way—there was only his wife to be considered, and Myra felt that she could keep her off until the divorce was over, and after that there'd never be much possibility of their meeting again. And, after all, she could scarcely accuse the wife of Leonard Gilbert of being the horrible "decorator" whom she had seen at her husband's lodge. Things were certain to come right.

With his arms still about Myra, Gilbert happened to glance at his wrist watch. "Almost two. I didn't know it was so late." He released Myra and turned to his desk. "I'd almost forgotten. I want to look up Huntley Sheldon this afternoon and give him some non-professional advice."

"Huntley Sheldon?" Myra gasped. Would that name never cease to terrify her. What was Leonard doing, seeking him out to give him advice. "Why, what about, Leonard?" she asked, contrary to her usual custom, for she seldom interfered in his business affairs, always waiting for him to make his own explanations.

"I'll tell you when I get back, dear," he laughed. "It may seem quite unethical to do this—considering the fact that I'm his wife's lawyer. But both he and Mrs. Sheldon will gain by it in the end. I've got to leave right away. Goodbye, dear." He picked up his hat and started for the door. "If anyone calls I'll be back by three, at the latest. See you later." He hurried out.

Myra looked after him wonderingly. Whatever was he going to do with Sheldon about. Suppose Sheldon mentioned her name in the conversation. What would Leonard think? But she must get used to this sort of thing. After all, they'd have to be dealing with the Sheldons for some months to come, and she couldn't allow herself to get nervous and jumpy every time the name was mentioned. She must convince herself that everything was all right.

O, it must be all right. She looked at the ring with its blazing, glorious, sparkling fires, and impulsively pressed it to her lips and kissed it. It was lovely—but dearer yet was the thought of the man who had given it to her. Her reverie was suddenly shattered by the sound of the automatic buzzer that announced a caller in her office.

With a light step she went out towards her own desk. There stood Mrs. Huntley Sheldon, her eyes blazing, her cheeks glowing.

"O, my dear, quick!" She gasped as Myra appeared. "I must see Mr. Gilbert at once! It's frightfully important."

"I'm sorry, Mrs. Sheldon, but Mr. Gilbert just this moment went out, and I don't expect him back for another hour at least," Myra explained. "If you had been just five minutes earlier—but, is there anything I can do?"

"O, my dear, this is two awful!" Mrs. Sheldon paced up and down the floor nervously. "I've simply got to tell you about it. I know you won't say a word. But I really should see Mr. Gilbert. I'm going to get the evidence this afternoon!" She was triumphant in her fury.

"The evidence," Myra returned weakly. What did that mean? Could someone have found out—that man Botts! But no, why should Mrs. Sheldon be telling her, if she were the person involved. But perhaps Mrs. Sheldon didn't know, yet, but was to be told later. "How do you mean?" she questioned.

"Why, the woman I'm looking for is going to be at his apartment this afternoon at two thirty!" Mrs. Sheldon stopped pacing long enough to laugh sarcastically. "I warned her—I told her I'd find out. I knew I couldn't fail." She went rushing on in a torrent of words.

But Myra scarcely heard what she was saying. All she could think of was the fact that now she was indeed well out of it. They were going this afternoon to find the real person who was entangled with Sheldon. And it wasn't she, because she knew quite well that she wouldn't go any nearer Sheldon than she would a red hot stove. So, there was someone else! And as soon as Mrs. Sheldon discovered the other woman, she'd never even think of that Sunday morning episode again.

A wave of pity for the "other woman" swept over her. She could feel sympathy with her, she thought, in having to deal with a person like Mrs. Sheldon. And moreover, Myra thought, she was quite competent to offer sympathy, seeing that she had been in almost the same position herself, even though innocently. She hoped that Mrs. Sheldon wouldn't be too hard on the woman, but she knew quite well that it wasn't in Nita Sheldon to be anything but extreme, one way or another. Suddenly something Mrs. Sheldon was saying brought her to with a start.

"What did you say?" she asked faintly.

"I was just saying," Mrs. Sheldon turned in her vivid, vivacious manner, her hands flying about as fast as her words, "that I haven't the remotest idea who this woman is, but we found out one thing—her first name's Helene!"

Good! Helene! Myra sat down abruptly. Helene! Her sister! Helene making appointments with Sheldon and she had just been married three days. It couldn't be possible. Yet it must be. Helene! G, how could she do such a thing—after the way she had talked last night. Worried for fear the man might come back into her life again, and having an engagement with him the following day. There must be some mistake.

"How—how do you know her name's Helene?" Myra questioned sick at heart.

Mrs. Annie E. Warden Dies In Her 84th Year

Death early today claimed an aged resident of Bristol and one who was well known among the older residents of the Borough.

Mrs. Annie E. Warden, wife of the late William Warden died at the home of her niece, Mrs. Mary L. Gilkeson, 926 Radcliffe street.

The deceased was taken ill on December 15th and had been confined to her home since that time. She died at about 5.30 today.

Mrs. Warden was in her 84th year and had lived in this vicinity all of her life. She was born in a house which was located near the Adams Hollow Bridge and for many years she conducted a store on upper Radcliffe street.

There are two nieces, Mrs. Gilkeson and Mrs. Albert Stackhouse, Asbury Park, surviving; one nephew, Jonathan S. Wright, Bristol.

Funeral will be held Friday afternoon at two o'clock from the Gilkeson residence and burial will be in the Bristol cemetery under the direction of the H. S. Rue Estate.

COMMUNITY SERVICE

DOYLESTOWN, Feb. 11.—At a meeting of the A. R. Atkinson Post of the American Legion at its headquarters in this borough, 130 World War veterans composing the present membership of the Post joined up with the nation-wide movement of the Legion in offering their service to the country in case of calamity or a great emergency.

It is but one of the numerous services that is rendered by the American Legion. The Atkinson Post will have its membership listed with the national authorities at Washington, the local order of the American Red Cross and with the Chief Burgess of Doylestown. In case of a local or county emergency, members of the Legion, can be called upon to render assistance in police duty or any other form of service that might be needed.

The local post also received a monthly report from the State headquarters of the American Legion, stating that Doylestown is leading Bucks county in membership this year and that the ninth district, Bucks and Montgomery counties, is leading the state and that Pennsylvania is leading the nation in membership in the Legion for 1928.

An "On to Uniontown" committee was appointed by Post Commander Charles Hart to arrange to take the entire post membership and the Atkinson Post drum and bugle corps to the state convention in that city next August.

IN 13 MONTHS... NEARLY A MILLION MEN HAVE CHANGED TO CHESTERFIELD!

AND HERE'S WHY:

WE STATE it as our honest belief that the tobaccos used in Chesterfield cigarettes are of finer quality and hence of better taste than in any other cigarette at the price.
